Among the witnesses were President Edwin R. Craighead of Tulane University, formerly president of Central College at Payette, Mo., Professor W. B. Gregory of the experimental division of the same aniversity, L. W. Wilkinson, who is an engineer and expert.

Their testimony would appear to establish the fact that the young Missourian has achieved a final victory, after several years devoted to a problem which has attracted the endeavors of many inventors. The har ester will be a success, said President Craighead. "The few details that remain to be corrected are simple enough. We can put the harvester in the field early this fall, as soon as the cane is tall enough to cut and make the needed improvements without any difficulty. "It is a wonderful machine. Working on the principle of an automobile, the harvester glides over the surface without the least difficulty. The rear wheels, which transmit the driving power, are broad and cased up on both sides with sheets of iron so that even in very muddy weather the harvester can be operated in the open field.

It was do the wors-of more than lee hands, and can be oper-ated comparatively inexpensively, only an engineer and one helper being needed.

"As the engine uses gasoline for fuel and only carries five gallons of water, the automobile arrangement is simple and needest.

"So far as I can see, the cutting, stripping and topping devices are perrfect, all that remains to be done being to construct the cylinders that strip the cane so that they can readily be cleaned. But this is

"Mr. Cockrell will soon, I am sure, be able to furnish his harvesters to every sugar planter in Louisiana."

Of INION OF ENPERT.

Professor Wilkinson, who was with Doctor Stubbs at the Auduben Park Sugar Station for several years, before taking the present chair in Tulane University, which he has held for the past eight years, said that Mr. Cockrell's machine was, in his opinion, already a success.

The details that remain to be perfected are all simple, was his comment. There are but four ideas involved in the Cockrell harvester—gathering up the came if it should be tangled and down; cutting the came, stripping the came, and then the cane; stripping the cane, and then topping it.

"I had never believed until I saw Mr. Cockrell's harvester that cane could be topped successfully by machinery. Now I have changed my mind and believe that. on the contrary, this machine can and will top it more perfectly than it could possibly be done by hand.

"Mr. Cockrell has the right idea. Every sugar planter in the State should see the machine in the field this fall. The cutting arrangement they have all seen. The stripping device, while new as Mr. Cockrell has designed it, has never been an impossibility. spossibility.

But until Mr. Cockreil perfected his pping idea no one clse was ever fortune enough to invent anything that promsed, even in the most imperfect manner,

"I make the prediction right now that Mr. cockrell a few years hence will be considered one of the greatest benefactors hat sugar planters have ever known, and at the same time have the satisfaction of knowing that he is a self-made million-

SCHIFF DENIES IRREGULARITY IN DEALING WITH EQUITABLE.

Says Charges Brought by Policy Holders tre Not Founded in Fact -liyde in Silent.

New York, March 3 .- Jacob H. Schiff to-day with reference to the charges made yesterday in a petition presented to the State Attorney General Techniques the State Attorney General at Albany by State Senator Brackett.

These charges alleged that Mr. Schiff, who is a director of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, had received commissions on bonds worth $5,00000, sold to the society by his own banking firm. Kuhn, Loeb & Co., and that, therefore, he had violated the law forbidding partheipation in such transactions by a di-rector of an insurance company. Mr. Schiff raid to a representative of the As-sociated Press.

Schiff raid to a representative of the Associated Press:

"It must not be expected that I shall dignify by any defense of my firm's position the wild allegations made, which have no basis in fact. Suffice it to say that my firm has recently submitted to different embent counsel the transactions it has made heretofore with the Equitable, and has been advised by all of these counsel that, in their opinion, no reason exists why these dealing should be discontinued, and similar transactions as heretofore, not be made in the future by the firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., with the Equitable Life Assurance Society."

At the office of James M, Hyde, vice president of the Equitable Society, it was said that Mr. Hyde had nothing to say in reference to the charges made against him by State Senator Brackett to the effect that funds of the society had been used by Mr. Hyde to pay for entertainments given by him.

A personal friend of Mr. Hyde said, however, that it was not true that Hyde had spent the society's funds in that manner, but that such entertainments had been paid for out of Mr. Hyde's private means.

She said that Seawell was to send her to Springfield.

M. Seawell called upon Chief of Police Kiely about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon and told him that he was not related to the girl. Seawell is assistant Prosecuting Attorney at Yellville. He said that an effort was made to get him to meet the sirl and send her on to Springfield.

Seawell declared that the young Yellville merchant wanted Nellie out of the way, fearing prosecution. Seawell stated that he had made no arrangement to meet the girl and did not know she was coming. Miss Tatum, who has been in Matron Kintzing's care ever since two hours after she arrived in St. Louis, corroborated Seawell's statement when questioned by Chief Kiely. She has received a letter from her father, in which he writes that her mother is heartforoken and wants her to return at once. at once.

Seawell says he will take Miss Tatum back to YellyBe and will ask the Grand Jury to take up an investigation of the case at once.
